Republican "Tuesday Group" Elects Congressman Dent as Co-Chairman

WASHINGTON, D.C. — U.S. Rep. Charlie Dent (PA-15) was elected co-chairman of the "Tuesday Group," an organization of Congressional Republicans who advocate achieving bipartisan consensus on pro-defense, pro-personal responsibility and pro-science policies. Congressman Dent joins U.S. Rep. Mark Steven Kirk of Illinois as co-chair.

"I look forward to co-chairing the Tuesday Group, and in that capacity I intend to help foster bipartisan consensus," Congressman Dent said. "I think a message in this last election was sent to both parties that we need to focus on issues that serve all Americans. My goal is to find common-sense solutions based on common ground among Republicans and Democrats, to achieve goals we share."

"Charlie will be a strong addition to the Tuesday Group leadership," Congressman Kirk said. "Charlie is a leader on key issues such as homeland security and alternative energy. We look forward to working with like-minded Democrats to reduce spending, kill the pensions of members who commit felonies, advance alternative energy, and promote math and science education."

The Tuesday Group, with more than 40 members, meets most Tuesdays when the House is in session. Last year the group was instrumental in bringing stem-cell legislation to the House floor. The group was formed in 1994 after Republicans became the majority party in the Congress.
